• Introduction:

The Central Library, Gujarat Technological University (GTU), organized “Abhigam,” an orientation Programme for MBA students, with the aim of introducing them to the library’s resources, facilities, Library membership and Borrowing process, Reading area Reference services and research support services. Around 60 students participated in the programme in two batch. The orientation was led by Dr. Mahesh K. Solanki, Librarian, Central Library, GTU, who introduced the students to the various facilities and services available in the library. Students were explained the RFID-based issue and return system, through which books can be issued for 14 days and returned or renewed as per library rules. About the Membership of the Library, the silent environment of the library, sources of the library, reprography service etc.

• Digital resources and E-Databases:

The students were also introduced by Heenaben Parmar to the Central Library's e-resources and online databases, including KIMBUS, Scopus, and ProQuest, ONOS which support academic study, assignments, projects, and research. The programme also provided information about the E-Corner, which facilitates access to digital resources and computer-based services. In addition, students were introduced to the Turnitin plagiarism-checking service, which helps ensure originality and maintain academic integrity in their assignments and research work. Overall, Abhigam provided MBA students with valuable awareness of the Central Library's resources and encouraged them to make effective use of its services during their academic journey at GTU.

• Conclusion:

The Abhigam Orientation Programme was an informative and valuable initiative for the MBA students, providing them with a clear understanding of the Central Library, GTU, and its various services and resources. The session helped students become familiar with the RFID-based book circulation system, e-resources such as KIMBUS, Scopus and ProQuest, the E-Corner, and Turnitin plagiarism-checking facility. The programme encouraged students to make effective use of library resources for their academic studies, assignments, projects, and research, thereby supporting their overall academic development
